

Holland-America Line chefs are noted for their Blue Ribbon creations. Menus for breakfast, luncheon and dinner are long and varied, offering an amazing choice of all the favorite American dishes as well as many famous European delicacies prepared in the manner of the countries of their origin. Each principal meal is a feast . . . a joy to the palate of particular epicures who like delicious food well served. And to keep apace with hearty, sea-going appetites, on Holland-America Line ships fresh bouillon is served at eleven every morning, tea with luscious pastries at four every afternoon, and a tempting buffet supper of cold cuts, sandwiches, salads, cakes and tea or coffee at eleven every evening for those who relish a tempting snack before retiring for the night.
